SUMMER 2013

MORAVIAN MANOR—A COMMUNITY WITHIN A COMMUNITY™

“ePals” Modern-Day Pen-Pals Project: Closing the Generation Gap for Local Students

If you were a school student prior to this current age of computer technology, you very likely may have had the experience of corresponding by mail with a pen pal. If your experience was like mine, our pen pals were about the same age as us but living in another country or another culture. Keeping up with regular correspondence was sometimes challenging, but always worthwhile when a letter from our “friend” arrived in the mailbox. We learned much about life in a foreign culture while also discovering that we shared many of the same experiences.

During this past school year, a few residents at Moravian Manor shared an intergenerational writing experience with Warwick Middle School’s 7th grade language arts class taught by Mrs. Sally McGeehan—not as pen pals, but as “ePals.” Mrs. McGeehan introduced the idea at a meeting with Manor residents last fall and it was enthusiastically received. Throughout the school year, monthly e-mail correspondence occurred between residents and assigned students. Mrs. McGeehan gave the students writing assignments and she reviewed all e-mail correspondence.

Residents and students met each other for the first time when Mrs. McGeehan and Warwick Middle School principal, Dr. Michael Smith, accompanied the students to Moravian Manor for an ice cream social. During the social, resident Larry Marks shared a bit of history about ice cream and students shared what they enjoyed learning through the “ePal” experience. Although these “ePals” did not come from other countries or other cultures, they did come from different generations. Residents and students enjoyed learning new things about each other’s generation and, in spite of growing up during different times, they learned that they have shared many similar life experiences.

Lancaster Salutes Veterans: Memorial Day Celebration at Barnstormers Game

Memorial Day is usually known for backyard barbeques and small town parades, three-day weekends and the opening of the local pool for the summer season. For the past six years, however, the Clipper Stadium has been home to a different kind of celebration—the Salute to Veterans program started by Rep. John Bear. Today, the tradition is carried on by Rep. Steve Mentzer.

The festivities, which honored all branches of the service, were complete with a patriotic pre-game show featuring music, flags, trumpets, rifles, cannons, and a B-52 bomber flying overhead. It was spectacular! Eighteen-hundred tickets were given out to veterans and their guests for the evening.

Among those attending were veterans and Moravian Manor residents Bob Johns and Carl Ewing. Tom Langguth joined us to enjoy the patriotic celebration, which was free to veterans and their guests, and also the Lancaster Barnstormers' baseball game that followed. It was a beautiful evening and a touching way to celebrate the day and honor those men and women who have served our country.

ART of SUMMER

From the rhythmic chopping of fresh ingredients to the artistry of preparing them into satisfying meals, food is art that appeals to all our senses. The bright red strawberry kicks off our inspiration for this summer's artistic café offerings.

Throughout the season, you can expect everything from simple, great-tasting fare and flavor-packed meals to bright, colorful selections and truly Chef-inspired dishes.

We invite you to stroll around our "gallery" and enjoy the sights, the sounds, the fresh aromas and our delicious foods as you celebrate the Art of Summer with us.

ART
OF SUMMER

It is Not Me, It is You

One of my favorite television episodes is an old Seinfeld episode where “George” is trying to break up with his girlfriend and making a mess of the process. A well rehearsed line was used as he “sensitively” broke the relationship off. His line was, “it’s not you, it’s me,” trying to say that the failure of the relationship was entirely his fault. During the course of life most of us are on one side or the other of similar conversations.

Life at Moravian Manor is not a comedy act. While we certainly have “life moments” here at the Manor that cause us to chuckle, we also deal with very real scenarios that often are not resolved as easily as they are in a thirty minute sitcom.

I have concluded that the opposite of George’s line is the core ingredient for a ministry’s success. It is “not about me, it is all about you” is the key to success. Recently, we lost a tireless supporter of Moravian Manor as Dr. Victor Baer went to be in the “more immediate presence of Christ,” a phrase from a Moravian funeral blessing that I have come to appreciate.

To be candid, notwithstanding the wonderful efforts of the management and staff, it is the spirits of individuals like Dr. Baer that make the Manor what it is today. Victor unabashedly requested that individuals support Moravian Manor. He regularly touted the wonderful community of Moravian Manor and recruited both new residents and donors. I will never forget the moment he came to see me and it was very apparent that he was a bit down. The Manor had just begun a capital campaign and during this period of time Dr. Baer had experienced some health setbacks that were requiring some significant funds. He shared the amount he was going to give to the project and with genuine, heartfelt sadness said, “I really wish I could give more to this, but I am not sure of the upcoming expenditures we will have for our healthcare.”

Wow. It certainly is not about “me” is it? This spirit of generosity does not begin or end with our longtime resident, Dr. Baer. This spirit is very evident with many of our residents, Board members, friends and staff. The more we can take the focus off of “me” and collaborate for the good of the community, great things happen.

In raising three children I have also come to believe that if, during adolescence, they can get their focus off themselves (modern day miracle) life becomes much more fulfilling. I believe the same is true for all stages of life. We certainly see this proven time and time again with our residents and other supporters at Moravian Manor. Many of you reading this article fit into this category. Thank you for making Moravian Manor a wonderful place to serve and to live. It is not about me, it is about you.

For this Swiss Native, True Dedication and Tradition Go a Long Way

Resident Spotlight: Max Hausmann

For Max Hausmann, a Swiss native, the word “dedicated” takes on a special meaning. In recent years it’s rare to work for one company your entire career. But Max did just that, serving the same corporation for nearly 50 years, and on three different continents. His enduring commitment extends beyond just work, reaching into his personal life and community involvement as well.

Max’s story begins in Zurich, Switzerland, in the German-speaking part of the country, where he was raised and educated and where he learned to ski—a pursuit that has endured through the years.

After he graduated from high school, Max attended one year of commercial college in the French-speaking part of the country “to perfect [his] French,” as he put it, cracking a smile. He then obtained an apprenticeship with an overseas trading company (which operated under the name of “COSA Corporation” in the U.S.). For the next three years, Max worked for the company as an apprentice while attending school part-time, after which he took and passed the exam for the Swiss Federal Diploma in Commercial Trade. “The Swiss system is very good,” Max explained. “Ninety-five percent of young people have a job after an apprenticeship or college.” With his diploma in hand, Max received a permanent job at COSA.

His career kept him busy and he maintained course until World War II, when he joined the Swiss army and completed basic military training. His placement on active service was near the Rhine River, the border between Switzerland and Germany. “We were there to keep Hitler out!” Max explained. Hitler claimed that, upon his victory, he would march into Switzerland, which he called ‘my little porcupine’ because the country’s borders were so heavily protected by barbed wire obstacles. “He never made it,” Max smiled.

After the war, Max was reassigned to work with COSA Corporation in the office of a health clinic on Lake Geneva, where he met his wife, Lisette. The couple married in October 1950. Not long after, the company sought to transfer Max to their China office. However, the rise of the communist regime forced the closing of that regional office. Instead, Max and Lisette made the move to Brazil in 1952 Games on the Greene!

On a recent warm spring day, apartment, cottage, and townhome residents enjoyed an afternoon of games and fellowship in the Manor's newly constructed outdoor recreation area. The area, which includes a shuffleboard court, bocce court, and three-hole putting green, is located behind Manor Greene Apartments in a beautiful, shaded area along the woods. The adjacent grassy space accommodates games of ladder golf and croquet. The event kicked-off what is expected to be a fun-filled summer of fun and healthful exercise for all. Weather permitting of course!

where he worked in the corporate offices in Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro.

A mere three years later, the Hausmanns arrived in New York City with Max taking a new position with COSA, selling metal working machines that were made in Germany, France, Switzerland, Italy and Japan. His office was on the 55th floor of the Chrysler Building, overlooking the East River. Five years later, in 1960, Max and Lisette became citizens of the United States.

It was during the 1960s that Max and Lisette welcomed the arrival of their two children, Mark and Michelle. Over the years with COSA, Max advanced within the company, ultimately retiring in 1989 as Treasurer and Vice President of Finance.

Throughout the years, the Hausmanns lived in different parts of New Jersey and New York. While attending the same church in the town of Ossining, New York, in 1964, they became fast friends with Dr. and Mrs. Victor Baer and Dick and Jean Packard, all future Moravian Manor residents. "Dr. Baer was the pastor of our church in Ossining," Max explained. "He even baptized our daughter!" In time, the Baer's moved to Lititz and Moravian Manor, and Max and Lisette went to visit them. "We found this was a nice place," Max exclaimed. The Baers shared the many fine qualities of the senior living community with Max and Lisette, aiding them in making the decision to move to Moravian Manor.

In 2003, the couple moved to a Moravian Avenue cottage, and Max quickly embraced the opportunity to get involved in the community. He not only joined the Lititz Rotary Club, but also the Moravian Manor Resident Council where he served four years and two terms on the governance committee. He also is very involved in the campus exercise classes.

In his spare time, Max enjoys gardening and biking as well as spending time with his three grandsons Brian, Brandon, and Dylan. Even today at 88 years of age, his life-long passion for skiing continues, and he treks to Davos, Switzerland annually with his son, Mark, for a father-son ski trip where he still tackles the most advanced slopes with grace and ease. The two return to the same place every year. "Always to Davos," Max says, because they know the people and the hotel there, and for him it's a touch of coming home every trip.

New Heritage Circle Members Recognized at Annual Donor Dinner

The 21st Annual Donor Recognition Dinner was held on April 26 in Steinman Hall following a reception in the Gallery Café. Board Chair Richard A. Minnich extended a warm welcome and sincere appreciation to more than 110 of the Manor's generous supporters who attended the dinner.

Following a reception and three-course dinner catered and served by the Manor's dietary services department, new members of the Heritage Circle and those who achieved a new gift level were honored for their loyal and generous support. All honorees received a piece of pottery made by Lititz artisan Steve de Perrot who designed the color pallet and pattern of the pottery specifically for Moravian Manor's donor recognition program.

The Heritage Circle consists of the Manor's most generous donors who have made a one-time gift or cumulative gifts of $10,000 or more in support of the Manor's ministry. The gift levels are named in honor of the visionary and courageous individuals who served on the founding board or who were instrumental in the planning or early development of Moravian Manor.

New members of the Heritage Circle are Ms. Mary Ann Hartzell and Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Heitshu.

Members recognized at new levels include Mr. Edmund "Larry" Marks; Mr. Gary Langmuir, Wohlsen Construction

A Moravian Manor Engaging Community Program

Monday, September 23, 2013
Lancaster Marriott at Penn Square

Jeannette Walls is a journalist and author of the memoir, The Glass Castle, which was on the New York Times best-sellers list for more than four years. In this inspirational book, she describes growing up in the desert of the American Southwest and then in a West Virginia mining town with her three siblings and the brilliant, unorthodox, irresponsible parents who managed at once to neglect them, love them, and teach them to face their fears.

More than 3.5 million copies of her memoir have been sold in the U.S. alone, it has been translated into 22 languages, and it is being made into a movie. It was also named one of the “Top 10 Books of the Decade” by Amazon.

Engaging Community is an annual program hosted by Moravian Manor that builds upon our community focus by offering a quality educational, inspirational, entertaining program to increase the awareness of Moravian Manor’s mission and role throughout Lancaster County and beyond. Proceeds from this program benefit Moravian Manor’s Senior Care Ministry. Table and other sponsorship opportunities are available. For more information on sponsorship, contact Diane Ford, CFRE, Director of Development at 717-626-0214.
